materials ^{by} ourselves and revised them into tutorials which were suitable for the children there to learn. However, it was actually pretty touching when I found myself standing in front of a bunch of students and imparting knowledge to them. We taught them some vocabulary and taught them the importance of environmental protection of their environment. The experience was memorable!

It dawned on me that some serious issues needed to be solved after this program. There are places in the world that are ⁱⁿ really bad living condition, especially in those impoverished countries. I sincerely hope that people from developed countries can raise more awareness toward this problem and that we can join hands to make the globe a better place. Personally, I find it very rewarding to help others to learn, regardless of their race. In fact, I don't even consider it a barrier as long as we have the will to appreciate and to give. I love the feeling of helping others to learn. It makes me happy when seeing their progress and it fulfills my spiritual life as well. Therefore, if I were granted the opportunity to be a volunteer next time, by all means will I say yes joyfully.
